

RED LINE IS THE CUT LINE

The diagram shows a rectangular page layout with several key lines and arrows. A central vertical line is labeled as the fold line. Two diagonal lines extending from the top center towards the left and right edges are labeled as the cut lines. A horizontal line spanning the width of the page is labeled as the safety line. A horizontal line on the right side, extending from the center fold line to the right edge, is labeled as the fold line. Arrows point from the text labels to their respective lines: two arrows point from the top cut line text to the diagonal lines, a long arrow points from the safety line text to the horizontal line, and an arrow points from the fold line text to the horizontal line on the right.
